May Alter Kicking Rule.

Foster Sanford, the old Yale star, has proposed the field, and has named his method the multiple kick. He had his Rutgers team use it and it proved of value against Brown, for the only way Rutgers was Brown, for the only way Rutgers was able to tally was through a multiple kick. Two men go back with the quarter and hold hands in such a way that he can place the ball in them in the same position a punt is held and then a fourth man kicks the ball.

In reality it is simply a punt held by two men and it is going to be interesting to see how the rule committee regard this when they meet next year. The rules read as follows about goals:
